

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A compressor comprises a compressing mechanism for compressing a fluid that contains lubricating oil, and a separation chamber that is to have revolved therein fluid compressed by the compressing mechanism, wherein at least part of the lubricating oil contained in the fluid is separated by centrifugal force produced by this revolution, and wherein only this introduced fluid is present in the separation chamber.

10

15

20

25